Mr. Sam Lim, Executive Chairman & Chief Executive Officer explained, "This transaction strengthens the strategic road map of each company. Sunright expands its leadership in the burn-in and test equipment market and its international presence, solidifying its position as a company focused on equipment innovations, while KESM fortifies its leadership in burn-in and test services."

He added, "KESM Test would become a wholly-owned subsidiary of KESM. Sunright's strategic holding in KESM remains unchanged."

Mr. Lim explained, "Some 15 years ago, we exited from the memory testing services. Now following this latest divestiture in KESM Test, it will enable Sunright to focus on its patented innovations and to grow its production developments targeted at a newer generation of chips. Sunright is well placed to take a leadership role in the burn-in and test equipment market."

He added, "As semiconductor manufacturers add capacities in response to favorable market conditions such as sensors in cars, growth of LEDs and mobile devices, Sunright is ready to benefit from these upturns."
